A Unique Perspective On Partnership

At CereCore, our heritage as a health system operator gives us a unique perspective on meeting our clients' needs emphatically. We know first-hand the pressures, costs, expertise, and teamwork needed in supporting top performing organizations. Providing qualified technical talent is more than recruitment and placement for us – it is an extension of our mission to the communities and industries we serve. That's why we take a personalized and strategic approach to IT staffing services to provide the right talent, at the right time, at the right cost-model.

Experience You Can Trust

Our team has years of experience finding and on-boarding technical talent that can hit the ground running – including serving the nation's top performing health systems and high-growth businesses. The result is a team of recruitment professionals with precision screening processes, well-honed instincts for finding talent and culture fit, as well one of the largest pools of highly-skilled candidates for clinical applications, technical, project management, and consulting expertise.

Flexible Staffing Options

Our technical resources share in our mission to serve where they are needed most. This provides you the flexibility to source strategic, cost-effective, project-based resources to help your organization transform. Our staffing options include:
